Dominican Theatre Presents “Servant of Two Masters”

First of four performances to begin Oct. 9

WHITEFISH BAY, Wis. – Dominican High School will present four performances of the timeless Italian comedy, “Servant of Two Masters,” Oct. 9-12.

Written by Carlo Goldoni, the “Servant of Two Masters” tells the story of a harlequin fool named Truffaldino making the best of his misfortune by serving two masters at once. Truffaldino finds himself caught between two lovers, their parents and an innkeeper’s wild bunch of waiters adding to the mirthful madness.

“Servant of Two Masters” will be performed in the traditional Italian style of commedia dell’arte, or in English, the art of comedy. The humor in this elaborate tale is universal, filled with music, gags and comedic timing well worthy of Vaudeville.

“I chose ‘Servant of Two Masters’ because of the challenge it holds for the students,” said Director Jeff Schaetzke. “The comedy relies on speech, diction, physical humor and perfect timing. It’s loud, fast and fun.”

Over 40 Dominican students are involved in the production. The 20-member cast includes, David Lancelle, Anna Herzfield, Rachel Zembrowski, Eric Pfeiffer, Jamie Beuche, Courtney Neale, Anthony Pollman, Marshall Sims, Katie O’Neil, Lizzie Fons, Ann Hagner, LeAnn Vance, Pami Klug, Jesse Galimoto-Grebe, Becca Lade, Katie Miller, Jazzmyne Jenkins, Tori Wirth, Thomas Herzfeld and Michael Linn.

Molly Brauer is the stage manager and Deanna Gauthier and Isabel Arisso are the assistant managers. More than two dozen students are part of the crew.
